Proposal to update Faculty Policies and Procedures Chapter 4 (“The Faculty Divisions”)

The University Committee recommends the changes to FPP Chapter 4 indicated below, in order to clarify and simplify divisional membership, bring FPP in line with practice on some points, and modify practice on other points. Specifically:

- Sections 4.02. and 4.03. as currently written describe a process whereby the University Committee, in consultation with the departments and the divisional committees, establishes the divisional membership of departments, and then faculty in those departments select their individual divisional membership based on that departmental membership. This has not been the process for quite some time. In fact, this is the opposite of what we have been doing. We currently ask each newly hired faculty member to select the division that best fits their scholarship and then we determine departmental divisional membership based on the membership of that department’s faculty. The changes proposed here are to bring FPP into line with that practice.

- Section 4.10.A.: The changes to the first part of this section are recommended at the request of the Arts and Humanities divisional committee. There are approximately 35 departments currently in A&H (compared to 53 in Biological Sciences, 28 in Physical Sciences, and 40 in Social Sciences), making the selection of 12 individuals from different departments increasingly difficult. The divisional committee considered changing the language to allow for two members from departments over a certain size, but discarded that idea in favor of allowing two members from any department because (a) it is already difficult to recruit divisional committee members and (b) there is a perception that large departments already have more power.

- Section 4.10.A.: The changes to the latter part of this section are to allow committee members filling out partial terms to be re-elected.

- Section 4.10.E.: The new language about co-chairs is intended to reflect that some of our divisional committees currently operate with co-chairs rather than a single chair. There has not been a report from a division to the faculty in at least several years, and likely some decades. This change maintains the chair’s ability to make such a report, if they so choose.

- Section 4.30.: The existing language dates to a time before online systems enable the posting of information. This change reflects the fact that physical documents are no longer distributed.
