Over the course of the last few semesters, the University Committee, the Secretary of the Faculty, the chair and members of the CDCC, the staff of the DDEEA, and university leadership have been discussing updating the charge of the CDCC. There are several reasons for the resulting proposal below, among which are:

- The CDCC predates the office of the Chief Diversity Officer. Thus there are parts of the committee’s charge that directly relate to functions now performed by DDEEA. Several of the proposed changes below are in recognition of the fact that some of the current CDCC functions are not exercised by any other shared governance committee. These functions are more efficiently and appropriately housed in an administrative office rather than in a shared governance committee, the role of which is more advice, oversight, and input, rather than execution of administrative functions.

- As a result of this long history, the CDCC has grown to include up to 20 ex officio members, creating an unwieldy and unnecessarily complicated body. All committee are free to invite guests or otherwise work with people outside the committee, without the need for an official “consultant” designation, so this has been removed in the proposal below.

- The Advisory Committee for the Office of Equity and Diversity is focused on advising that office with regards to a compliance function that has been moved to the Office of Compliance. Some of the changes below are to incorporate some of the functions of the Advisory Committee to the OED. (A new committee, the CDAI, considered separately, will include the remaining charge of this committee, which would be retired if the new committee and the changes below are approved.)

The CDCC issued a report in August 2017 outlining changes to FPP that it felt improved the functionality of the committee. These included reducing the number of CDCC functions from twelve to seven by eliminating functions that are outdated, duplicative, confusing, or exceed CDCC resources and also developing a subcommittee structure to make better use of CDCC members’ time and talents and facilitate CDCC performance of its functions.

The August 2017 document proposed four subcommittees, rather than the three below. The one that is not included in the proposal below is a “chancellor-provost meetings” subcommittee. One of the changes proposed below that was not part of the August 2017 CDCC document is the elimination of the twice annual meetings with the chancellor and provost. These meetings, like the CDCC itself, predate the creation of the office of the vice provost and chief diversity officer. Eliminating these meetings brings this committee into line with other Chapter 6 committees and makes this particular subcommittee unnecessary.

Two elements of the proposal below are specifically aimed at strengthening and focusing the CDCC’s role as supportive of the DDEEA and diversity and inclusion more generally:

- The preamble to the functions of the committee have been edited to include the Institutional Statement on Diversity, which was a product of cross-campus input approved by the Faculty Senate and other governance bodies.
- The function that is now listed first was moved up from the sixth position, emphasizing that the CDCC works with the office of the chief diversity officer.
